

Geneva Work Solutions is becoming Geneva Wellbeing

Why we're evolving

For years, Geneva Work Solutions has specialised in helping people navigate workplace injuries and return-to-work pathways. Now, we're taking an exciting step forward by becoming part of Geneva Wellbeing – a new brand that brings together complementary health services under one integrated approach, one cohesive brand. This evolution reflects our understanding that workplace rehabilitation works best when connected with broader wellbeing support. Physical recovery, mental health, workplace adjustments, and specialised services all influence each other, and our new integrated approach acknowledges this holistic reality.

Geneva Wellbeing is built around moving your people and culture forward. This vision aligns perfectly with what we've always aimed to do – supporting progress and positive change in people's work lives after injury or during health challenges. By joining forces with other specialist services under the Geneva Wellbeing name, we're creating a more connected approach that recognises how different aspects of health influence overall wellbeing.

What this means for you

As part of Geneva Wellbeing, we'll continue providing expert workplace rehabilitation and workplace solutions, delivered by the same dedicated team. What's changing is your access to additional services that complement our expertise:

- Integrated evidence-based mental health and resilience support in the workplace
- Expanded physical rehabilitation and wellness services
- A more streamlined experience with one trusted partner for all your workplace wellbeing needs.

What's staying the same

While our name will change, our commitment to you remains unwavering:

- The same team of workplace rehabilitation experts
- Our evidence-based, practical approach to return-to-work solutions
- Our focus on creating sustainable outcomes for both employers and employees
- The high-quality services you know and value
- Our personalised approach to each client's unique circumstances.

Part of the New Zealand Health Group whānau

Geneva Wellbeing is proudly part of New Zealand Health Group (NZHG), a collective of health and wellbeing organisations committed to helping all New Zealanders live their best lives. Our parent organisation's kaupapa – "Together, for good, Pai ake tātau" – guides everything we do, ensuring our integrated approach delivers meaningful, lasting outcomes for individuals, whānau, and organisations across Aotearoa.

The transition journey

You'll soon be able to find us at genevawellbeing.co.nz

In the meantime, you can continue to access all our services as usual. We'll keep you updated throughout this transition period.

For any questions about what this means for your organisation, please reach out to your usual contact. We're here to ensure this transition enhances our service to you without any disruption.

We're genuinely excited about this next chapter and the expanded ways we'll be able to support your organisation's wellbeing journey.
